Dear Colleagues,

We are pleased to announce the forthcoming Prague Semester on Behavioral Economics and Experimental Psychology. We would be grateful, if you could forward the information hereafter to those who might be interested.

The Prague Semester is a three-month long program that takes place in Prague from October 3, 2016 to December 18, 2016. The program aims to bring to students of various backgrounds the state-of-art behavioral research and methodologies. The Semester is designed with an emphasis on interactive teaching, peer-to-peer learning, joining experiments and employing the newly acquired knowledge in real world settings. Students will take part in short term internships and/or will work on concrete real-world projects.

The Prague Semester is inspired by successful Prague Summer Schools' program on Behavioral Economics and Psychology (link), and is driven by the passion of students and teachers to create longer and more applied program. Since its foundation in 2003, Schola Empirica created one of the largest international short-term education programs in Europe having brought more than one thousand students from universities across all inhabited continents into Prague.

Please visit www.praguesemester.org to discover the details about the Prague Semester 2016. The website contains detailed information on academics, practical matters, admissions and online application. Should you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact us via email info@praguesemster.org.

Yours faithfully,

Egle Havrdova, MA, Ph.D., Director, Schola Empirica
Vojtech Zika, Program Coordinator, The Prague Semester

--
SCHOLA EMPIRICA
Vyjezdova 510 | Prague | Czech Republic
www.scholaempirica.org
www.praguesemester.org